Anthropocene Austria

A new volume of Austrian Studies

Volume 30 of Austrian Studies examines the presence of the now well-established paradigm of the Anthropocene – which perceives human activity as a geological force that is leaving an indelible trace on the fabric of the planet – in Austrian literature and culture. In 11 wide-ranging contributions, the volume highlights the entanglements of Austrian literature, film and contemporary culture with environments and ecologies in the age of climate breakdown. Join us for an online discussion with the editors Dr Nicola Thomas (Lancaster) and Prof. Caitriona Ní Dhúill (Cork / Salzburg), in conversation with Prof. Dr. Eva Horn (Vienna Anthropocene Network).
